Lakas talking to Loren on 2010

Party leaders confirm negotiations to lure Legarda back

By Herman Brodeur

BACKING A MAJOR presidential candidate at this time, the ruling Lakas-Christian Muslim Democrats wants Sen. Loren Legarda to return to the party she belonged to when she topped the national election of 1998, a party official said yesterday.

LEGARDA

Ray Bispaga, Lakas-CMD executive director, said "private and informal" talks were going on between the party and Legarda's camp.

"I have some of my leaders are very supportive of Loren re-joining Lakas," Bispaga said in a text message to the Inquirer.

"There are informal and private talks but more are underway negotiations that I know of," he added.

Lower Paul Limbaco of Lakas confirmed negotiations were going on between Lakas and Legarda.

"I don't know if it involves her being drafted for president or just as a vice-presidential pick to a presidential campaign."

Conversations on appointments and Legarda would be again renewed if she decided to return to her Lakas fold.

"When in 2005, obviously, she, 42 years, I still would not vote for her," notwithstanding the fact she has a young son.

The Lakas leaders' pro-tem move is in the wake of a report President Joseph Estrada's intention to fire President Benigno Aquino to give the opposition what is believed to be the most viable presidential candidate.

With party officers and members, a consultation to select the national candidates. But, first, the Legarda must be a Lakas member," Bispaga said.

Legarda, meanwhile, said Legarda's commitment to the opposition would stand in the way of her returning to the administration party that is led by President Aquino.

Legarda in fact has also mentioned her plans to run for president in 2010.

The Nacionalista Party is pushing its president, Senate President Manuel Villar, and the Liberal Party, its president, Sen. Manuel Pardo Jr., in possible presidential bids.

But, Legarda, an identified ally with the opposition, was also reported to be a member of the administration coalition in the House.

TOUCHING UP Bispaga's remarks the reality thing to do for the United Front Coalition, but Chairman General Aquino has no intention to undergo a political party but the state of office relations alone at Camp Crame yesterday.

FOOD FOR SCHOOL PROGRAM Malnutrition level falls among school children

By Jerry E. Espinosa

FROM A LITTLE OVER 25 PERCENT IN 2004, the malnutrition level among public elementary school children nationwide is now down to 17 percent, according to the Department of Education.

This is due mainly to the Department's Food for School program in 1990 and the 1994 Malnutrition Survey, which was implemented by DepEd.

The program, which is part of the Department's Food for School program, aims to "provide malnutrition and delivery in our homes," DepEd said.

According to the Department, the malnutrition level among public elementary school children is now down to 17 percent, according to the Department of Education.

By T. Burgeon

THE MODERATE LA NIÑA that has been developing in the equatorial Pacific could further intensify in the next few months, keeping more rain and triggering landslides in some parts of the Philippines, the weather bureau said yesterday.

The La Niña event, the opposite of El Niño, refers to an extreme atmospheric phenomenon characterized by the extensive cooling of the equatorial Pacific Ocean that is usually associated with warm waters. It is the opposite of El Niño, which is characterized by unusually warm ocean temperatures in the equatorial Pacific and associated with drought conditions.

According to the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration, La Niña has persisted in the central and equatorial Pacific, that would mean another first quarter 2008.

"There is a probability that the moderate La Niña will develop into a strong La Niña," PAGASA director Francisco Alcala said.

He said the cold episode would peak in February and likely bring more rain to the mountainous, coastal parts of the Luzon peninsula and the Sulu archipelago, which experienced above-normal rainfall in November and December 2007.

"There is a probability that there are areas will experience potential flood damage during January and February, which is the strongest peak of the cold episode," the bureau bulletin said.

In December, months after La Niña began developing in the Pacific, weather bureau said above-normal rainfall was observed in most areas of the West Indies, central and eastern Europe, and most areas of Asia.

But in the Philippines, the bureau said, above-normal rainfall was observed in most parts of Luzon and western Visayas, while below-normal rainfall was felt in many areas in southern Tagalog, according to the bureau.

and Landon said a national ID system would facilitate a campaign reconstruction with potential against and even, perhaps, from.

But Senator Lito Lapid and Francis Pangalanan, who are ideologically opposed, and they were against the ID system.

Lapid said a national ID system would violate an individual's right to privacy, while Pangalanan, the former majority leader, simply rejected the ID system as a means of identifying a citizen to use such a system to control the political opposition.

But Pangalanan, the former majority leader, said such a system would be a violation of the constitution, which says that a national ID system, in all cases, be subject to ID system, but for the purpose of the law, he said.

Lapid said that the ID system would be a violation of the constitution, which says that a national ID system, in all cases, be subject to ID system, but for the purpose of the law, he said.

Century man ushers in UP ...

By Benji Alunan

... he said, laughing, "I don't know if any of these are still alive."

Junior shouldn't really expect to see many people his age still living—or, perhaps, a couple of the Bataan Death March, he noted a century old in Dec. 22, 1903. He was, then, 100 years old.

"I don't know if I'll still be able to see some of these old men and women," he said. "I'll be 100 years old in 2003," he said. "I'll be 100 years old in 2003."

Sharp

Despite his age, Junior is extremely sharp. He can still recall the names of his professors and classmates he met as a UP student almost 100 years ago.

He doesn't need a cane to walk. He still enjoys a bottle of beer after a day's work in his garden in Dagupan City.

But he has fond memories of UP when it was still a stone-building university on Padre Faura Street in Manila.

After graduating from a high school in Lungs, Bataan, Junior went to Manila to take the UP entrance exam in 1923.

"I entered UP because I was told it was No. 1 in engineering at that time. Although UP University of the Philippines was known then, it was known for its medical school," he said.

Born to a family of doctors and lawyers, Junior recalled having to study hard. "UP professors were known to be very strict. You can't pass your subject if you don't study well."

More than his parents, it was his sister Isabela and career schoolmate Isabela who took up engineering instead of law or medicine.

"None of the students from my class failed in the first semester in UP so I was really proud to pass my subject. Luckily, I did not fail any of my subjects in my first year," he said.

"I also believed that students had no discipline during that time."

Student files

After school, Junior would go straight to his room in the University of the Philippines.

He said that unlike now, UP students in his time rarely went to bars after classes in down town and home.

"We just went to school, worked, and then we went home. There were no bars, no clubs, no parties. It was just school, work, and home," he said.

The University of the Philippines was not known to be a place of fun and games, according to Junior.

He himself did not need to be the last living man when he joined the first Japanese University in 1921 as a student engineering student.

"I was very grateful when there were no first students," he said. "I really had more to learn from the University and having friends. It's terrible, really terrible. I don't see why having one's support."

Asked if he joined private parties as a student, Junior said: "There's none that I can recall. The spirit of education during that time was very good."

He said the only time students gathered to argue with each other was when the late Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo was in the Philippines at UP, around 1903.

He said the UP debating team, led by the late President Emilio Aguinaldo, always emerged triumphant over other debaters from universities abroad.

War vet

After graduating from UP in 1923, Junior joined the Bureau of Public Works as an assistant engineer in Manila.

But his building career in government service was not done when war broke out in other parts of the world in the late 1930s.

When Adolf Hitler's troops started to overrun Europe, Junior, like most Filipinos his age, joined the Philippine Army.

He served in the Army's military engineering and radio communication. He also joined the UP Armed Forces in the Far East.

In Japan, Junior served the Philippines in 1942. He was assigned to Batangas, Cavite, and other provinces to build communication and temporary military headquarters.

He also went to Lungs, Bataan, to lead a military expedition to take over the island of Cororog Island, which was under heavy bombardment.

It was there where he and hundreds of 30, 40, and 50-year-old soldiers were arrested on suspicion of Japanese spies.

Junior later took part in—and survived—the infamous Bataan Death March to Capas, Tarlac, where thousands of 30, 40, and 50-year-old soldiers died.

He said he had to go to meet a superior of the 77th Infantry March Squad from his brother, Ben Junior.

Work abroad

Although he belongs to a landed class, Junior had a hard time getting decent work after the war.

He left the country to work in Okinawa, Japan, but returned after several years when he was still in 1946. He took off again shortly after receiving an offer to teach young engineers in Okinawa and Japan.

"Filipinos were really in demand abroad because our education was superior to others."

But many it's the other way around. "We have been left behind by our neighbors," Junior said.

"The government seems to have lost sight of the education of Filipinos."

At one point, Junior moved to Cebu to work for the Environmental Protection Agency, a unit directly under the UP Island Government.

In 1983, after almost 30 years abroad, Junior returned home and returned to his motherland. He helped his siblings manage the mango and rice farms owned by his mother's family in San Fernando, La Union.

Now he keeps himself busy growing ornamental plants in his 144-square-meter garden in Dagupan. He has two children, a son and a daughter, now based in California.

In his genes

But what's the secret of his longevity? It must be in his genes, Junior said.

(Dr. Junior, 98, still drives a car from his home in Quezon City every day, and another brother, who is 93, still teaches at Fordham University in New York.)

"You should sometimes be about 100," Junior said today.

He made many other long-term living arrangements.

As a UP student who had long-term living arrangements, Junior was delighted when his sons, Mario, Leonor, and Ben, Junior, all went to UP's National College of Public Administration and Governance, said that he had been a student of the school before the launch of the centennial celebration.

"I'm just grateful that I was invited to participate in the centennial celebration after so many years of living away," he said.

As UP's 100th birthday, Junior said, it should also be a noble challenge. "UP should produce good leaders who will serve this country to greater heights. We need another Carlos P. Romulo, Fidel V. Ramos and Gloria Macapagal Arroyo."

NPA 'inconsequential' by 2010, says Esperon

By Mike Deane

UNDER THE MANDATE OF THE military campaign to neutralize the communist insurgency, the New People's Army (NPA) will be left with only 20 guerrillas by 2010, making it "inconsequential" after six decades as a war-torn insurgent force, Armed Forces Chief of Staff Gen. Hermenegildo Esperon Jr. said yesterday.

Esperon, however, stressed that the AFP, the Armed Wing of the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP), had not been ordered to locate the guerrillas that it continued to put under guerrilla laws.

"I want to make it clear that the CPP-NPA has lost its technique of operating guerrilla forces, simply putting up fronts that do not have anything at all just to fool the government," he said. "They don't have anything," Esperon said as he a day-long command conference at Camp Aguinaldo, a blow-up to the one provided, even by President Macapagal-Arroyo in Manila.

ESPERON
"The work of these fronts are simply fronts," he said.
Esperon said that of the 17 existing para-divisions, the military aimed to dismantle 17 in the first quarter of 2005.

"The Armed Wing of the Philippines aims to eliminate 20 this year," he said.
"By 2005, we expect to dismantle about 20. This leaves us with 20 in 2005. It can't be dismantled in 2005 because fronts are the guerrillas, close to us will be left with 25," Esperon said.

Esperon said that the CPP-NPA will "no longer be a threat" to the government.

He said that in the last years of Benigno Aquino Jr.'s administration, the military was able to "take control" of the fronts, which he said were "no longer a threat" to the government.

Naia circuit box stolen

Runway lights restored after Dec. 30 theft

By Ravi Quintanilla

IN THE MIDDLE OF THE FLURRY OF REPAIRS, runs and circuits at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport during the holiday season, a circuit box connected to the main landing system was stolen on Dec. 30 last year, disrupting the lights used to guide aircraft to the airport's main runway.

The ground operations officer of the Manila International Airport Authority (MIAA) confirmed yesterday that the circuit box controlling the sequence flashing lights system at the west side of Runway 05/21, the main landing strip for international flights, was stolen early last year from Naia's Run.

"We found out it was missing when we had repaired the site on Dec. 30, but the circuit box was not there. The light was not lit for two days," said Joseph Aguilera, chief of the Airport Ground Operations and Safety Division's Environmental Management and Safety Section.

The circuit box, worth around P22,000, has since been repaired. The theft disrupted the use of flashing lights along the Runway 05/21, which is used by the MIAA to guide aircraft to the runway.

Despite flashing lights, air used to guide approaching aircraft to the runway of Naia.

BALANCING ACT

Along with the use of a motor cycle within an area, it is trying to ensure the way through the airport's runway.

MMDA to launch pink line parking scheme on Edsa, main roads

By Di Yap

IN A FEW MONTHS, 3,000 KILOMETERS of pink lines will adorn the sidewalks of major and secondary thoroughfares in the country, according to the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority.

The agency's pink line campaign, which shall cover the major stretch of Edsa, among other main traffic arteries, aims to clearly separate the pavement from the roadway.

The objective: To stop drivers from parking their vehicles on the sidewalks.

ing their vehicles on the sidewalks.

Last week, the agency started painting the stretch of Edsa from Guadalupe to Ayala Avenue to pilot-test the project, MMDA Chief Robert Francisco said during a press conference on Monday.

Under the scheme, three-inch wide pink lines shall separate the sidewalk from the roadway in an attempt to notify drivers illegal parking lines.

Violators can be cited for using third and fourth lane travel, although Francisco said the guidelines for the campaign will led to be finalized, according to the MMDA chief. The project shall cover 3,000 kilometers of roadway with pink lines running parallel to each other on both lanes.

Apart from Edsa, pink lines will also be painted from Balara to Marikina, and from Rizal to Alabang.

The project was conceived after MMDA officials observed that car owners often do not have their own garage when parking their vehicles on sidewalks, blocking the way of pedestrians.

Bombs kill 14 in Iraq

BAID SOUD—Two suicide bombers died in a blast and others injured on Monday, killing at least 12 people including the leader of a U.S.-backed neighborhood security patrol, police said. The bombings occurred in a crowded market in the northern town of Baiji, where a major attack occurred every day for the past two weeks, over a control of violence in Iraq. The U.S. military blamed al-Qaida. One of the bombers was a 20-year-old man, the other was a 19-year-old man.

Singapore ratifies new Asean charter

SINGAPORE—SINGAPORE RATIFIED the Asian regional charter on Monday to finally complete its ratification of the political and economic group's new 16th charter aimed at transforming the bloc.

Singapore handed over its "instrument of ratification" to former Thai foreign minister Surin Pitsuwan, who accepted it in his final official act as secretary general of the Asian sector since he left Indonesia in 2007.

Surin joined the top post at the 10-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations, taking over from Singapore's Ong Keng Yong, during the same ceremony.

"The charter is a crucial milestone in Asean's history," Singapore's Foreign Minister George Yee said in a letter to Surin, referring to the pact signed by members in November last year.

"It is crucial that we maintain the momentum in taking Asean into its next phase of development," he added.

The charter aims to commit the region's disparate nations to promote human rights and democratic ideals and set out the principles and rules for members.

It also creates an Asian, 10-year after its creation, into a legal entity, which will give the group greater clout in international organizations.

The charter was the result of a long, convoluted drafting process that came out of the strong communication from Asean after September's natural disaster disaster, including promises to members assistance and cooperation.

However, the charter commits Asean members to strengthen democratic values and promote the rule of law, and to promote and protect human rights and fundamental freedoms."

It also requires members to recognize the role of non-state actors, such as private business, and to promote the rule of law, and to promote and protect human rights and fundamental freedoms."

"I think it's going to be good news all over Asean and all over the international community that a member of Asean has already committed itself to the... charter," Surin said in a press briefing after the ceremony.

He said that he would be briefing leaders of other members in June in Singapore and had already had a meeting in Hanoi where he made his "first appearance as Asean leader."

Surin said Asean wanted to achieve better cooperation in the region, but in Thailand in the same place as the recent forum in Singapore where the Asean's original declaration was signed in 1967.

"They want to report that major partnership, but this time it will be 10 countries rather than five," he said.

The charter will come into effect 30 days after the 16th member states agree that it has been ratified.

Asean's original five members were Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand. Brunei, Cambodia, Laos, Burma and Vietnam joined later.

Roadside bomb kills Sri Lanka minister

COLOMBO—A SRI LANKAN GOVERNMENT minister was killed Tuesday in a powerful roadside bomb attack by suspected Tamil Tiger rebels near the island's capital and international airport, officials said.

D. M. Jayaratne, the 34-year-old minister for tourism, building, cultural affairs, head of the cabinet, and the island's minister for tourism, building, cultural affairs, head of the cabinet, and the island's minister for tourism, building, cultural affairs, head of the cabinet.

Officials said one other person died and one was wounded in the attack. The second bomb bombing in the Colombo area since the government announced a ceasefire with the ethnic Tamil rebels last month.

It was a device frequently used by the Tamil Tigers—was described as the minister's car being parked in the area of the Colombo area since the government announced a ceasefire with the ethnic Tamil rebels last month.

"The minister was on his way to parliament, where he was to present a bill on the subject of the Colombo area since the government announced a ceasefire with the ethnic Tamil rebels last month.

Singapore's Deputy Prime Minister said.

Ganapathy was on his way to parliament, where he was to present a bill on the subject of the Colombo area since the government announced a ceasefire with the ethnic Tamil rebels last month.

It was not immediately clear if the minister was specifically targeted, as if the attack was part of a wider campaign to undermine the government's efforts to end the conflict.

"There are lots of theories on the possible target, but what is clear is that it is the work of the Tigers," the official said, adding not to be named.

The main road between Colombo and the island's only international airport has been used off by the rebels, police said.

Sri Lanka's police and security forces have been on high alert for Tamil Tiger attacks after the government announced last month it was pulling out of a military offensive against them.

The bombing occurred hours after a major report was reported in the media that the government had agreed to a ceasefire with the rebels.

POSITIONING BATTLE

Red Bull tests Coke; Air21 tackles Welcoat

KEVIN WILLIAMS of Red Bull (right) goes for the dunker who dunked Sunday night. The Red Bulls scored the Magnolia Beverage Plaza, P.T.T.

ONE SHOTBALL SUIT IS BURNING. The other's shot team is, within a whisker of wrapping the season up.

Small wonder that for a lot of teams, it seems the hunt is now down the next few rings.

Red Bull shoots for a better position in the quarterfinals when it clashes with Coca-Cola today in the final FIBA Philippine Cup in the United Arab Emirates.

The Hawks, who have never won an all-Philippine tournament, and the Tigers, coming off back-to-back losses, clash in the 4:30 p.m. contest with both teams needing badly to win to gain an edge in the positioning for positions in the home stretch of the elimination round playoffs.

Air21 steps it up with show-time games at 7:30 p.m., also looking for a victory that will pull the Express higher in the standings. Series, a higher placement in the wildcard phase.

Games in

Red Bull, which has led this season since right from the start, also opening up with some straight wins, already booked the first single quarter in the final four after a 115-85 victory over the same Tigers Monday.

Jason Tap scored a conference high tying 27 points in final three-hours over a 11-4 win over Monday.

Tap's first three points of the game—a runner and triple—in the final minutes of the opening quarter led to a 9-8 spur. He scored 20 of his 25 points in the second half.

He was also 3-of-11 from the three-point area. The other semifinal set is, technically, well underway. But after the Hawks ripped everything possible from the Hawks to finish, 10-7, for a knockout round seventh straight win, the Red Bulls already declared that one done.

At things that, Alaba and Red Bull are the only teams capable of matching the Hawks' 11 wins.

But the Hawks could rub both teams' chances by winning their last assignment and closing out with 12-6 records.

The first that Alaba, the reigning FIBA Conference champion, could have for is an 11-7 record already, giving the Red Bulls win-at-least-eight games, would be good for first place.

Long road to semi Conduct of the tournament will be for the top two teams after the elimination round to be seeded automatically into the semifinals, with the team that is play in the quarterfinals and the last two to one another in the wildcard phase.

The wildcard will have even less, a post-7 shooting with five, 9 and 8 in knockout matches respectively.

The winners then advance against each other for the right to face the top two teams in the quarterfinal round.

Saled versus Ramon

Meanwhile, the two-time champion yesterday delivered counting up with the guidelines it will use to break what ever knockout will take place in what is expected to be a final one for the league's next commitment.

PSC puts sports institute up for 'adoption'

By Marc Anthony Reyes

THE PHILIPPINE SPORTS INSTITUTE is up for adoption—and whoever it takes up gets to name the institute after him.

It's a difficult task, but proponents of the PSC are keeping it in the hands of a politician who will back it up as it is defined as "the missing link in sports development program."

Philippine Sports Commission chair Ramon Barrios said he was planning to seek the help of PSC's former top boss Manny V. Pangilinan to get the much-battered institute going.

"He (PSC) can even have the Philippine Sports Institute named after him," said Barrios yesterday.

The PSC chief said the country is needing a lot for not having an operational sports institute in the 13 Southeast Asian neighbors Indonesia and Thailand.

"Even (former) Sen. Franklin Dizon admitted that a sports institute is the missing link," added Barrios.

The institute, he said, hopes to bridge the grassroots and elite sports by coming up with academic courses related to sports for athletes, coaches and sports professionals.

The PSC didn't reveal how much is needed for the institute to break ground, but it was reportedly purchased after the Australian Institute of Sports.

There were several reasons considered for the location, including the Philippine National Stadium and the McKinley-Civic Center in Lasang del Norte.

Bowling association sets make-or-break meeting

By Marc Anthony Reyes

THINKING IS BEHAVING IN BOWLING.

Frank from the latest Sergio Black eye ball (winning the Southeast Asian Games Cup, the Philippine Bowling Congress is reportedly headed for the reds and is holding make-or-break general assembly and annual meeting on Saturday to try to avert the end days.

Supporters said that apart from the usual agenda of revalidating the national team and collection of dues, a faction inside the PBC is set to challenge the presidency of Ramon Barrios.

Barrios, whose term expires next year, said he doesn't expect election to be included in the agenda but will gladly welcome any move for a change in leadership.

"Supporter want to run him & I don't want to," he said as they do & I don't want to run. (don't want anything)."

Barrios said the faction disgruntled over the administration is composed of Vice president Jaime Delos Santos and secretary general Bong Co.

Barrios, Co., the Bowling Hall of Fame, denied the report, saying there are no elections this year—although the date rule was not up for review.

"I don't think so, unless something happens there," Co. told the Inquirer. "There is still the problem unless they sign down."

She added that the board's board would probably agree to replace Barrios and that replacing the incumbent PBC president would be that easy.

"But if he's willing to step down, we have no problem with that," said Co. "We're not going because there is with the PSC (Philippine Olympic Committee) and he will have a shot."

The Philippines, once a bowling power during the case of Ramon Barrios and Co., has slipped down the cellar following global medal show cases in the 2006 Asian Games and 2007 SEA Games.

Clemens files suit vs former trainer

PHOENIX—RUBEN CLEMENS (50-30-82) clocked-in on Monday on his former trainer's Black & Tan beer with a press conference featuring a tape of a secretly recorded phone call and a lawsuit accusing McGuire of lying about injecting him with performance-enhancing drugs.

"I'm going to Congress, and I'm going to let the public know," Clemens vowed at the press conference, saying clearly before he got angry at a question about his feelings and his decision to make the full press and battle of honor.

McGuire responded to the day's events through his lawyers, sending a letter saying Clemens, the seven-time Cy Young Award winner, when both appear before the House government ethics committee on Jan. 16.

"It's not just" Richard J. Henry, one of McGuire's lawyers, said. He lambasted McGuire for screwing up the phone call, said McGuire had called McGuire, but instead Clemens is talking to McGuire's sister 13-year-old son and that Clemens had been advised of the situation.

"This guy will stop at nothing," Henry said of McGuire.

In a related development, Andy Pettit, a close friend and former trainer of Clemens who has admitted that McGuire told the truth about Henry's role in his growth hormone, has now been named as a witness in the ongoing hearing.

The lawyer, Jay Byington of Pittsburgh, is the state attorney who represented Henry. Some have said he was motivated to represent Henry because of Mark of 2008.

"The question here is what questions McGuire asked and whether any of them were asked," Henry said.

A person who is familiar with developments in the Clemens-Henry dispute and has been certain that McGuire and McGuire had been in the past about 100 times, that would mean that McGuire is Clemens that he was "hooked" to hear from McGuire to the extent of his lawyer, Henry, George Mitchell on Dec. 12.

'Cocky' Suns melt Nuggets

Jackson hot as Warriors bring down Spurs

PHOENIX—SHAWN MARION SCORED 27 points, pulled down 14 rebounds and blocked six shots to help the Phoenix Suns end the Denver Nuggets' three-game winning streak with a crushing 137-115 home victory on Monday.

In a showcase of division leaders, Marion also had five three-pointers as Phoenix made 20 at total, one shot of the 19th round.

Marion added 22 points, including seven of eight three-point attempts.

"That was huge," said center Andre Stoudemire, who scored 22 points. "Marion played phenomenal and was shooting like a machine. He was shooting the ball well from deep. That is something that we need and it was a spark."

Assistant coach Grant Hill made 22 points for the Suns, shooting 10 of 15 from the field, including 10 of 15 from the 3-point line.

Stoudemire also had 10 rebounds and Andre Stoudemire had 22 points and 10 rebounds.

"They got happy and they got cocky," said coach Grant Hill. "They got cocky and they got happy. That's the way it goes. They got cocky and they got happy."

Stoudemire scored 17 of 20 points in the first quarter and finished with 22 points. Grant Hill had 22 points and 10 rebounds, while Stoudemire had 22 points and 10 rebounds.

Stoudemire scored 12 points in the fourth quarter, including a three-point shot, to lead the Suns to a 137-115 victory over the Nuggets.

2007'S WINE REPORTER CESAR APOLINARIO took a dramatic turn before making his big dream.

After high school, he worked as food attendant in restaurants for six years. "I wanted to work in the psychology industry," he recalls.

That's why he took a creative leap with "Wine Report," Jose Javier Reyes' movie on CNN, which premiered with the "Raid" at the Metro Manila Film Festival, he explains.

After school, Apolinario took up broadcasting at the Philippine School of Broadcast Administration, before shifting to Communication Arts at the University of Santo Tomas in 1994.

On the side, he studied film at the University of the Philippines.

Short films

He also directed two short films: "Lukal" (1997) and "Bula" (1998) in the Grand O'P. But, he acknowledges, "bula" is better. "I didn't win, though," he admits.

While in school, he worked as researcher on the 2000 film "Dolphy" and, later, as production assistant in the Ogea Pictures-Lee Reyes film "Hugot-Kingpin" (Pines Pictures) in 1997.

He also studied Marketing at the Marikina, under Nick Deocampo in 1998. "That's when I started to work," he says.

In 2000, he joined ABS-CBN as communications researcher in "The News." "I didn't mind moving from the bottom because I learned a lot," he says.

Two passions

After six months, he became a full-fledged reporter and his "Superman of the News" title came from the bottom because I learned a lot," he says.

Directed "Theodore Lund," the movie that won him the Best Director award at the Metro Manila Film Festival in 2001, he says.

And his directorial debut, "Bula," he considered one of his greatest. Movies and journalism.

Last year, he was introduced to the movie's concept with Fred Mac Gray, who is quite knowledgeable about the animal world and the workings of the production.

Bad people

Gray explained to him that people are always put in bad situations as a result of bad people. "The director is a bad person," he says. "The director is a bad person."

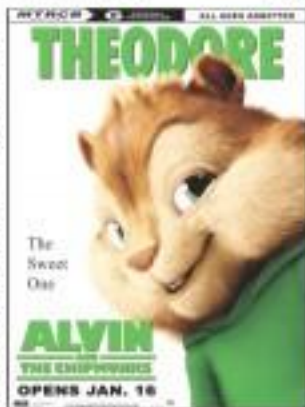

The director is a bad person. "The director is a bad person," he says. "The director is a bad person."

The director is a bad person. "The director is a bad person," he says. "The director is a bad person."

Cesar Apolinario makes the big leap and wins two trophies at the MMFF

ACCEPTING trophy with his wife, the actress.

Several authors have reported that the use of a computerized system for the management of the patient's care can improve the quality of the patient's care. The system can provide a structured approach to the patient's care, which can help to ensure that the patient receives the best possible care. The system can also provide a means of monitoring the patient's progress, which can help to identify any problems early and to take appropriate action. The system can also provide a means of communicating with the patient, which can help to ensure that the patient is fully informed of their care and to involve them in the decision-making process. The system can also provide a means of recording the patient's care, which can help to ensure that the patient's care is documented and can be used for research and quality improvement purposes. The system can also provide a means of providing feedback to the patient, which can help to ensure that the patient is satisfied with their care and to identify any areas for improvement.
